Trends - March Contract

Short Term: Up Long Term: Up

Overnight Trade: H +2 @7:30 AM

Estimated Fund Position

Net Long Futures and Options: 344000

Change: -10000

The corn market continues to consolidate. The $4.80 level is proving to be very strong resistance in the March contract, but at the same time, weakness is met with strong buying interest. The fundamental support from last week's USDA numbers is still a major force in the market place, which is why the market can't break. Fear is currently on the side of the bull camp. Traders are fearing higher prices and tighter stocks as we move through the crop year.

Trends - March Contract

Short Term: Up

Long Term: Down

Overnight Trade: Chicago: H -2 KC: H -1 @7:30 AM

Net Long Futures and Options: -75000

Change: -2000

US wheat has moved back into the middle of the trading range. The market is happily stuck in equilibrium and will likely remain that way until we have some sort of shift in fundamentals. The bulls obviously hope that has something to do with better export sales. Meanwhile the bears would be content with the status quo on the demand side and eventual harvest pressure.

Sovbeans Estimated Fund Position

Trends - March Contract

Short Term: Up Long Term: Up

Overnight Trade: H + 10 @7:30 AM

Net Long Futures and Options: 46000

Change: -5000

The soybeans had a big break yesterday, but got back about half those losses right at the end of the overnight session. The March beans found support at one of the first key areas around $10.18 and bounced from there. Basically the key of the day is yesterday's low. If that low is taken out the market is headed for $9.85. Meanwhile, the meal market is still acting as a boat anchor and the bean oil is faltering.

Live Cattle Trend

Short Term: Up Long Term: Up

Opening Calls: Mixed

Live cattle futures posted triple digit losses on Thursday, after failing to score new highs in the April contract for the 4th consecutive day. Cutouts were mixed, with choice -.73 and select +1.34. Cash trade became active on Thursday, with the $200-$201 in the south and $203-$205 up north, with northern beef prices in a wide range of $318-$327. Technically, this market looks as vulnerable as it has for quite some time. Equities are supportive, with good strength overnight, while a firmer Dollar adds to the potential follow through.

Feeder Cattle

Trends

Short Term: Up Long Term: Up

Opening Call: Mixed

Feeder cattle futures took out weekly lows on Thursday, finishing 2.10 lower in the active March contract. The selloff came in spite of moderately lower corn trade and new highs in the cash index. The index is now more than 5.00 premium to the January futures that expire in less than 2 weeks. Overnight corn values are modestly higher, as we write.

Spot month crude oil traded higher in overnight trade, keeping with a trading pattern that has been in place all week. This week began with new 5-month highs in front month crude oil followed by an inside day down the following session. Wednesday then seen a new 6 month high before yesterday's action once again failed to make a new daily high or a daily low but did close moderately lower. That same pattern would put spot month crude oil on track for a higher close today, possibly even a new 6 month high. Whether the market posts a new high for the move may be very influential in how next week's trading develops. If new highs cannot be posted it could signal a short term top in the market at the very least. Market moving headlines are becoming mixed within themselves. The lead headline that has produced new highs has been new sanctions announced last week targeting Russian exports. This poses a global supply threat but should only carry the market so far as OPEC spare capacity could cover the shortfall quickly. Tariffs expected to be announced next week when President Trump takes office are also expected to target Iranian and Venezuelan exports. Chinese tariffs may be more important as it could tamp down already lethargic demand from the worlds second largest economy. Alternating

The equities closed lower as the Dow lost 68, the S&P lost 12, and the Nasdaq lost 172. This morning's futures are all higher with the Dow up 225, the S&P up 33, and the Nasdaq up 165. JP Morgan Chase, Goldman Sachs, and Morgan Stanley all beat expectations. Their fourth quarter was boosted by a surge in trading activity and a pickup in deal flow. An unscrewed cap was found near the Caribbean Islands and some flights were diverted near that area to avoid SpaceX debris.
